QUOTE OF THE DAY

"The test of literature is, I suppose, whether we ourselves live more intensely for the reading of it." – Elizabeth Drew

"All writers ... have an obligation to our readers: it's the obligation to write true things, especially important when we are creating tales of people who do not exist in places that never were — to understand that truth is not in what happens but what it tells us about who we are. Fiction is the lie that tells the truth, after all." – Neil Gaiman

"True peace required the presence of justice, not just the absence of conflict." – N. K. Jemisin

"All men dream, but not equally. Those who dream by night in the dusty recesses of their minds, wake in the day to find that it was vanity: but the dreamers of the day are dangerous men, for they may act on their dreams with open eyes, to make them possible." – Thomas Edward Lawrence (of Arabia)

"Reject your sense of injury and the injury itself disappears." – Marcus Aurelius

"I'd rather be a could-be if I cannot be an are; because a could-be is a maybe who is reaching for a star. I'd rather be a has-been than a might-have-been, by far; for a might have-been has never been, but a has was once an are." – Milton Berle
